JUNE 1990

FOLK ART FROM THE SOVIET UNION

In the vast and varied geographical areas of the Soviet Union live more than 100 different ethnic groups, each with its own language, customs, and unique cultural traditions. This is a country so vast that it covers one-sixth of the earth's surface. From the Baltic to the Bering Sea, from the Caucasus to Central Asia, comes a dazzling display of riches created by artisans from every region, in the most extensive presentation of the arts of the people of the Soviet Union ever shown in the United States.

The exhibition, on display in the Herbst Pavilion, includes more than 750 objects from the collection of the State Museum of Ethnography of the Peoples of the USSR in Leningrad, representing all fifteen Republics of the Soviet Union.

The objects, mostly from the 19th century, are all masterpieces of folk art, chosen for their aesthetic quality, craftsmanship, and regional character; all are indigenous art made for daily use. Reflecting the continuing change of living traditions, the works speak the international language of line, form, and color that transcends time and place and barriers of language and nationality.

This is the first time the Museum of Ethnography has sent abroad such a large collection of rarities. These wooden, metal, ceramic, glass, and textile objects represent crafts that have evolved over thousands of years, with knowledge and techniques passed from father to son and mother to daughter. The exhibit offers exotic rugs from Central Asia, Ukrainian glass and ceramics, Siberian ornamented costumes, carved and painted wooden kitchen implements, silver jewelry and samovars, and embroidered and block-printed textiles.

Organized by the Mingei International Museum of World Folk Art of La Jolla for San Diego's first international art festival, the exhibition is traveling to San Francisco, its only other United States showing, through the cooperation of the Mingei Museum and the Office of the Mayor of San Diego. It is presented at Fort Mason by the San Francisco Craft & Folk Art Museum.

"Folk art cannot be regarded as a lot of unconnected individual items; it is rather a whole world of images, systems of philosophical and esthetic ideologies and spiritual experiences of a whole people," says Dr. Olga A. Kondratyeva, Scientific Director of the Exhibition, in the introduction to the catalog accompanying the show. "We must support and protect folk art. This is not less important than the guarding of natural environments; the ecology of nature and the ecology of culture are reflected in the folk art of a region, and must be nurtured and preserved as a whole." Dr. Kondratyeva expresses the hopes of the Museum of Ethnography's staff that this exhibition "will increase the mutual understanding between our two countries, and will bring us nearer to each other....For every heart responds to beauty."

On opening day, 300 pieces of contemporary folk art, donated by the Soviet people specifically for San Francisco earthquake relief, will be sold one per customer.

The exhibition is open from June 21 through July 29, 10am to 6pm seven days a week; in addition, it remains open until 8pm each Tuesday. Admission is $6 for adults, $5 for Craft & Folk Art Museum members, and $4 for seniors, students with ID, and youth (ages 12 to 17). Children under 12 are admitted free. The 167-page color catalog, "Folk Art of the Soviet Union," is for sale during exhibition hours.

On Thursday, July 12 at 7pm, Elena Tsareva, curator of the exhibition, will give an illustrated lecture highlighting some of the objects in the show.

For further information, call the San Francisco Craft & Folk Art Museum at Fort Mason, 775-0990.

EARTH OPTIONS '90

"Earth Options is about how precious our natural environment is and the positive changes we can make to help mend it," says Donna Reeve, founder of this environmental fair. A walk-through tropical rainforest display, the Banana Slug String Band, and a kitchen so smart it practically recycles by itself are all presented at the event scheduled for June 15, 16 and 17 at Fort Mason.

In addition to entertainment, natural food booths, live animals and interactive displays, over 100 exhibitors offering products, services or information on protecting the environment will discuss their organizations or demonstrate their goods. This is a family event to help concerned people explore the practical steps they can take toward preserving our air, land, water and wildlife.

Displays include information on environmental travel, energy conservation and transportation, socially-responsible financial programs, recycling, and a clothing and product fashion show. The "green consumer" can shop on-site for environmentally-sound merchandise. Participants include Ben & Jerry's Ice Cream, Big Bend River Tours, Cancomal/Rainforest Crunch Candy, the Cousteau Society, Rainforest Action, Shopping for a Better World, Sobek Expeditions, and UC Research Expeditions.

One of the special treats of the weekend will be appearances by animals from Wildlife Associates, a nonprofit organization founded in 1980 to educate students and the general public about the need to preserve and protect the natural world. Wildlife Associates emphasizes the importance of maintaining a healthy environment, preserving natural habitats and allowing animals to live out their lives as nature intended. They care for animals that can never return to the wild, bringing them as ambassadors to hundreds of schools and agencies. Among the animals that participate in these visits are a bobcat, prairie falcon, barn owl, red-tailed hawk, coatimundi, bald eagle, timber wolf, and alligator.

According to a 1989 Gallup Poll, 76% of Americans think of themselves as environmentalists. "Earth Options is a cooperative effort - and its time has come," says Reeve. The Advisory Board includes representatives from the Natural Resources Defense Counsel, the Earth Sea Institute, the Rainforest Action Network, the Trust for Public Land, and the Sierra Club.

Earth Options '90 is open Friday from noon to 5pm, Saturday from 10am to 6pm, and Sunday from 10am to 5pm in the Festival Pavilion. Admission is $6, $3 for children and seniors, free for children under 6. For further information, call 456-3622.

NAMES QUILT ON DISPLAY

The NAMES Project's Memorial Quilt has become one of the nation's most valuable resources for promoting dialogue about AIDS. Photo: Mary Gottwald

More than 2,800 panels of the nearly 12,000 squares of the AIDS Memorial Quilt will be displayed in the Festival Pavilion from Thursday, June 21 through Sunday, June 24. This is the first time since 1988 that the Quilt has been formally displayed in San Francisco, where it originated.

"We encourage everyone in the Bay Area to attend the display," said Joe van-Es Ballesteros, one of the exhibit organizers. "For those of us who know firsthand the pain and loss of AIDS, it is a time to remember. For others, it is an opportunity to understand how deeply our community has been affected." As in other cities, all donations collected at the Quilt display will be equally distributed to local agencies providing direct services to people with AIDS/ARC/HIV, and their loved ones. The beneficiaries of the Fort Mason display include: the AIDS Emergency Fund, Family Link, Latino AIDS Project, Asian AIDS Project, American Indian AIDS Institute, Continuum, Healing Alternative Buyer's Club, Pets Are Wonderful Support, Rest Stop, Bridge, Godfather Fund, Project Inform, Shanti Project, San Francisco AIDS Foundation, Project Open Hand, Visiting Nurses and Hospice of San Francisco, Runaway Youths Network Association, and Bayview-Hunters Point Foundation.

New panels are continually being added to the Quilt. They may be submitted at Fort Mason during display hours.

Although the Quilt began as a memorial, it has become one of the nation's most valuable resources for promoting a compassionate and educational dialogue about AIDS. The Quilt's non-threatening nature allows people from all walks of life to learn about the epidemic from its human side. Its artistic and creative approach provides accessibility to all, regardless of literacy.

It provides a very clear, direct message: human beings die of AIDS. It's impossible to see the personal messages on the panels and not be touched; an emotional and educational experience to understand the value of those lost lives.

Additional panels of the Quilt will also be on display at several other San Francisco locations, including City Hall, San Francisco International Airport, the Exploratorium, UCSF, I. Magnin, Gump's, Saks Fifth Avenue, Wilkes Bashford, and Neiman-Marcus.

The display schedule at Fort Mason is Thursday from 7 to 10pm; Friday and Saturday from noon to 10pm; and Sunday from noon to 7pm. For further information, call The NAMES Project Foundation, 863-5511.
